Objectives

Administrative skills are qualities that help to complete tasks related to managing a business. This might involve responsibilities such as filing paperwork, meeting with internal and external stakeholders, presenting important information, developing processes, answering employee questions and more. There are many administrative skills that help to perform these responsibilities in an efficient, quality way.

Administrative skills are important because they keep business processes running smoothly. Any successful, efficient organization should have both administrative professionals who have strong skills in this area, as well as individual contributors who have good administrative skills.

There are many soft and technical skills that contribute to a strong set of administrative skills. While the technical skills required for administrative tasks may vary from business to business (such as proficiency with specific software or platforms), there are several soft or “interpersonal” skills common among people with strong administrative skills (Organization, Communication, Teamwork, Customer service, Responsibility, Time management and Multitasking).
